ABSTRACT

In response to the recent Financial Crisis - after it had been widely accepted that "a serious disturbance in the economy of Member States" had occurred, and that several measures were required to remedy this disturbance, various Commission communications were adopted and these include: The Communication on the application of State aid rules to measures taken in relation to financial institutions in the context of the current global financial crisis (hereinafter "the Banking Communication"), its Communication on the recapitalisation of financial institutions in the current financial crisis: limitation of aid to the minimum necessary and safeguards against undue distortions of competition (hereinafter "the Recapitalisation Communication"), and its Communication on the return to viability and the assessment of restructuring measures in the financial sector in the current crisis under the State aid rules (hereinafter "the Restructuring Communication")." The Banking Communication will constitute the focus of this study.

Are rescue aids (as distinguished from other forms of State aids) justified even where the possibility exists that rescue attempts are unlikely to succeed? Should rescue aids still be granted at a point when other measures such as winding down measures and the provision of other forms of liquidity assistance could be introduced?At what point should the Government decide upon the nationalisation of ailing institutions?

Furthermore, should State aids be provided to all classes of financial institutions which are considered to qualify for such aid – as stated within the Banking Communication?

These questions interalia constitute questions which are not only raised in this paper, but which this paper aims to address through a consideration of different State aid rescue and restructuring measures, as well as reference to two rescue aid cases, namely those of Bradford & Bingley (State aid NN 41/2008 – United Kingdom Rescue Aid to Bradford & Bingley) and Hypo Real Estate (State aid NN 44/2008 – Germany Rescue Aid for Hypo Real Estate).

In addition, the impact of the recent crisis on the choice of legislation and legal basis for compatibility assessments, will be highlighted. Whereas State aid to individual undertakings in difficulties is usually assessed under Article 87 (3)(c) of the EC Treaty and the Community Guidelines on State aid for rescuing and restructuring firms in difficulty, the systemic relevance of a financial institution and the impact of such an institution's failure on the economy, has been reflected by the preference for Article 87(3)(b) EC Treaty and Article 107(3)(b) TFEU.

Liquidity Assistance and the Provision of State Aid to Financial Institutions

A. Introduction

In response to the recognition that "the pervasive uncertainty about the credit risk of individual financial institutions" has severely restricted the market for inter bank lending – consequently impeding access to liquidity (for financial institutions), as well as the need to address a situation whereby the existence of individual financial institutions are threatened, the ECOFIN Council adopted measures whose purposes are directed at enhancing the soundness and stability of the banking systems and consequently restoring confidence and the proper functioning of the financial sector.<sup>2</sup>

Article 87(3)(c) of the Treaty and the Community Guidelines on State Aid For Rescuing and Restructuring Firms in Difficulty<sup>3</sup>, serve as the principal sources under which State aid to individual undertakings in difficulties is usually assessed.

An initial assessment occurs to establish whether the measures are to be regarded as State aid pursuant to Article 87(1) EC

What Constitutes a State Aid?

Legal bases

According to Article 87(1) EC, "State aid is any aid granted by a Member State or (ii) through State resources in any form whatsoever and which iii) distorts or threatens to distort competition by favouring certain undertakings as far as it affects trade between Member States."

Article 107(1) TFEU (Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union): According to this provision, State aid is any aid granted by a Member State or through State resources in any form whatsoever which distorts or threatens to distort competition by favouring certain undertakings or the production of certain goods is, insofar as it affects trade between Member States.

The ensuing section of this paper will consider whether a distinction should be drawn between "the treatment of illiquid but otherwise fundamentally sound financial institutions" where viability problems are exogenously induced and the treatment of financial institutions whose endogenous problems are attributed to inefficiency or excessive risk- taking. Section three will then introduce the different forms of State aids as set out under the "Communication from the Commission on the application of State aid rules to measures taken in relation to financial institutions in the context of the current global financial crisis"<sup>4</sup> – hereinafter referred to as the Banking Communication. Such State aids include guarantees, rescue aids, controlled winding up and other forms of liquidity assistance. The distortion of competition constitutes a major concern where State aids are provided - hence safeguards which are in place to ensure that competition is not distorted will be considered under section four. This will be facilitated through a reference to the general principles which constitute the basis of State aid rules of the EC Treaty and the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (hereinafter referred to as TFEU). Section five will then provide the forum for discussion on new and existing recapitalisation schemes as provided under the present Communication from the Commission on "the recapitalisation of financial institutions in the current financial crisis."Emergency guarantees<sup>5</sup> constitute the first identified systemic measure in response to the recent financial crisis whilst the recapitalisation<sup>6</sup> of financial institutions constitute the second type of systemic measure. Other measures which may serve as supplements to rescue aids and which include the controlled winding up<sup>7</sup> of financial institutions and the provision of other forms of liquidity assistance,<sup>8</sup> will be considered under sections six and seven respectively. Having drawn on all these considerations, the final and concluding section will attempt to address the questions raised in this paper – as highlighted under the abstract.

B. Should Financial Institutions Whose Problems Are Attributed To "Inefficiencies, Poor Asset-Liability Management or Risky Strategies" Benefit From State Aid?

In its Communication<sup>9</sup>, the Commission draws a distinction between "the treatment of illiquid but otherwise fundamentally sound financial institutions" where viability problems are exogenously induced and also related to extreme conditions which prevail in the financial market, and the treatment of financial institutions whose endogenous problems are related to inefficiency or excessive risk- taking.

Even though adverse possible consequences of state rescues in both cases are acknowledged, namely, the potential of such aids favouring the beneficiaries – to the detriment of their competitors, as well as the possibility that liquidity problems for financial institutions in other member states may be aggravated,<sup>10</sup> the provision of assistance to those financial institutions

&lt;sup>7</sup>"Such a controlled liquidation, possibly carried out in conjunction with a contribution of public funds, may be applied in individual cases, either as a second step, after rescue aid to an individual financial institution when it becomes clear that the latter cannot be restructured successfully, or in one single action. Controlled winding-up may also constitute an element of a general guarantee scheme, e.g. where a Member State undertakes to initiate liquidation of the financial institutions for which the guarantee needs to be activated."

See section 5; paragraph 43 of "Communication from the Commission — The application of State aid rules to measures taken in relation to financial institutions in the context of the current global financial crisis" (2008/C 270/02).

whose problems have been induced as a result of inefficiencies, poor asset liability management or risky strategies, could be disputed initially.

Provision of assistance to those institutions whose problems have been induced as a result of inefficiencies, poor asset liability management or risky strategies could however, be justified on the basis that such financial institutions are considered to be of significance in terms of the systemic risks which could be triggered within the financial system where such institutions are allowed to fail. That is, such institutions are considered to be "too big or too interconnected to fail." Furthermore, signals should be sent to management of firms considered to be "too big to fail" that their importance (in terms of the threats posed to systemic stability – where they are permitted to fail) does not provide an excuse for management of such firms to act recklessly – reckless behaviour being attributed to the knowledge that in any case, government bail outs would be provided in the event of a likelihood that financial failure may occur.

Restructuring of such institutions – to the extent that senior management (or indeed the entire management) of those institutions could be replaced would serve as a form of sanction and warning that reckless management of "too big to fail firms" would result in redundancies for the management of such firms.

C. Rescue Aids, Guarantees, Controlled Winding Down<sup>11</sup> of Financial Institutions and Provision of Other Forms of Liquidity Assistance.

Emergency guarantees<sup>12</sup> constitute the first identified systemic measure in response to the recent financial crisis whilst the recapitalisation<sup>13</sup> of financial institutions constitute the second type of systemic measure. Other measures which may serve as supplements to rescue aids include the controlled winding up<sup>14</sup> of financial institutions and the provision of other forms of liquidity assistance.<sup>15</sup>

Government guarantees, along with the monetary actions of central banks which are aimed at lowering interest rates as well as providing banks with exceptional amounts of liquidity, have served as means of addressing general liquidity needs of banks.<sup>16</sup>

The recapitalisation of financial institutions is also considered comprehensively in the Communication from the Commission — The recapitalisation of financial institutions in the current financial crisis: limitation of aid to the minimum necessary and safeguards against undue distortions of competition (2009/C 10/03)

&lt;sup>14</sup>"Such a controlled liquidation, possibly carried out in conjunction with a contribution of public funds, may be applied in individual cases, either as a second step, after rescue aid to an individual financial institution when it becomes clear that the latter cannot be restructured successfully, or in one single action. &lt;sup>16</sup> See DG Competition Staff Working Document, "The Application of State Aid Rules to Government Guarantee Schemes Covering Bank Debt to be issued after 30 June 2010" April 2010 at page 2

In the rescue case involving Hypo Real Estate (hereinafter referred to as HRE),<sup>17</sup> the Commission justified its decision to consider the guarantees as State aid since:<sup>18</sup>

- i) It considered it evident that the guarantees were from State resources
- ii) They had been offered to one bank only; and that
- iii) Because HRE is active in the banking sector (which is characterised by competition across member states), these measures distort competition and affect inter State trade.

D. Safeguards in Place To Ensure that Competition is not Distorted.

The Requirement that aid granted "does not exceed what is strictly necessary to achieve its legitimate purpose and that distortions of competition are avoided or minimized as far as possible"

In line with the general principles which constitute the basis of State aid rules of the Treaty, which require that the aid granted "does not exceed what is strictly necessary to achieve its legitimate purpose and that distortions of competition are avoided or minimized as far as possible, and taking due account of the current circumstances, all general support measures are require to be":<sup>19</sup>

- well targeted in order to be able to achieve effectively the objective of remedying a serious disturbance in the economy;
- proportionate to the challenge faced, not going beyond what is required to attain this effect; and
- designed in such a way as to minimize negative spill over effects on competitors, other sectors and other member states."

Compatibility of aid with the Internal market: The requirement of a Condition aimed at remedying "a serious disturbance in the economy of a member state."(Article 107(3)(b) TFEU).

The Requirement that aid serves " to remedy a serious disturbance in the economy of a Member State".

Article 107 (3) (b) TFEU allows the Commission to find aid compatible with the internal market if it serves " to remedy a serious disturbance in the economy of a Member State".<sup>20</sup> The Commission justified its assessment of State aid measures in the banking sectors at the time, in view of the current fragile state of the financial markets and with regards to the fact that the collapse and failure of a systemically relevant bank can directly affect the financial markets and indirectly the entire economy of a Member State.<sup>21</sup> Furthermore, the supervisory authority, BaFin, indicated that "a collapse of HRE group would have considerable negative effects on the national and international financial markets, with the potential to cause major disruptions and to eliminate the trust that has recently resurged."<sup>22</sup> The Commission, on these bases, assessed the State aid measures for HRE under Article 107(3)(b) TFEU.

Are Guarantees Appropriate, Necessary and Proportional?

In arriving at the conclusion that the guarantees were appropriate, necessary and proportional at the time, and in considering their compatibility with the Internal Market on the basis of Article 107(3)(b)TFEU on a temporary basis, the Commission based its decision on the following considerations:<sup>23</sup>

- i) That from the information provided by Germany, it was evident that HRE was still experiencing serious difficulties in covering its refinancing needs without continued State support, and therefore State guarantees on its funding operations are an appropriate means and necessary to ensure that it can maintain its operations.
- ii) In cases where financial stability is at stake and urgent remedial action is needed to keep the ailing bank afloat as in the present case -, it can be accepted that it is necessary to temporarily grant emergency aid prior to the final assessment of the revised restructuring plan.
- iii) The guarantee amounting to EUR 8 billion is proportionate as it is limited in amount and time.
- iv) The guarantee amounting to EUR 10 billion is proportionate as it is limited in time and amount.

Necessary procedures which had been promulgated by the German government in January 2009, and which were aimed at facilitating the adoption of legislation which would enable it acquire a majority stake holding in Hypo,<sup>24</sup> resulted in the squeeze-out of minority shareholders - this being approved by a court in Munich in October 2009 (which paved way for the German government's rescue fund SoFFin to get 100 percent of the real estate lender).<sup>25</sup>

This was to ensure that at the General Meeting, which would take place on 2 June 2009, the Financial Market Stabilisation Authority would have the simple majority of votes and thus be able to put through a capital increase. After the capital increase of EUR 3 billion, the Financial Market Stabilisation Authority was to subscribe to all new shares, which would give it 90 % of the voting rights. This would enable it to take over all shares by means of a squeeze-out. #### E. RECAPITALISATION

Recapitalisation schemes in three<sup>26</sup> member states and recapitalisation measures which accord with principles set out in the Banking Communication, have been approved by the Commission.<sup>27</sup>

Section 1 (4) of the Communication on the "Recapitalisation of Financial Institutions in the Current Financial Crisis"sets out a number of objectives which the recapitalisation of banks could serve - within the context of the recent Financial Crisis:<sup>28</sup>

- First, recapitalisations contribute to the restoration of financial stability and help restore the confidence needed for the recovery of inter-bank lending. Moreover, additional capital provides a cushion in recessionary times to absorb losses and limits the risk of banks becoming insolvent."<sup>29</sup>
- Second, recapitalisations can have as objective to ensure lending to the real economy. Fundamentally sound banks may prefer to restrict lending in order to avoid risk and maintain higher capital ratios. State capital injection may prevent credit supply restrictions and limit the pass-on of the financial markets' difficulties to other businesses.<sup>30</sup>
- Third, State recapitalisation may also be an appropriate response to the problems of financial institutions facing insolvency as a result of their particular business model or investment strategy. <sup>31</sup>

&lt;sup>27</sup>Recapitalisation, notably in the form of ordinary and preferred shares, has been authorized, subject in particular to the introduction of market-oriented remuneration rates, appropriate behavioural safeguards and regular review. However, as the nature, scope and conditions of recapitalisation schemes currently being envisaged vary considerably, both Member States and potential beneficiary institutions have called for more detailed guidance as to whether specific forms of recapitalisation would be acceptable under State aid rules. In particular, some Member States envisage the recapitalisation of banks, not primarily to rescue them but rather to ensure lending to the real economy. The ECOFIN Council of 2 December 2008 recognised the need for further guidance for precautionary recapitalisations to sustain credit, and called for its urgent adoption by the Commission. The present Communication provides guidance for new recapitalisation schemes and opens the possibility for adjustment of existing recapitalisation schemes." See Communication from the Commission — The recapitalisation of financial institutions in the current financial crisis: limitation of aid to the minimum necessary and safeguards against undue distortions of competition (2009/C 10/03);section 1 para (3)

&lt;sup>29</sup>Furthermore, section 1 paragraph 4 states that "under current conditions, triggered in particular by the collapse of Lehman Brothers, fundamentally sound banks may require capital injections to respond to a widespread perception that higher capital ratios are necessary in view of the past underestimation of risk and the increased cost of funding."

&lt;sup>31</sup>"A capital injection from public sources providing emergency support to an individual bank may also help to avoid short term systemic effects of its possible insolvency. In the longer term, recapitalisation could support efforts to prepare the return of the bank in question to long term viability or its orderly winding-up." see ibid;

Whilst recognising the benefits of recapitalisation, its potential to instigate distortions in respect of competition, is also acknowledged.<sup>32</sup>

F. CONTROLLED WINDING-UP OF FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

Pursuant to Section 5, paragraph 43 of the Banking Communication, controlled liquidation (which is possible in collaboration with the contribution of public funds), may be undertaken:

- Either as a second step after rescue aid to an individual financial institution has been granted (when it becomes clear that the latter cannot be restructured successfully) or;
- In one single action

"Controlled winding-up may also constitute an element of a general guarantee scheme."<sup>33</sup> The need to minimise moral hazard (through the exclusion of shareholders and particular classes of creditors from the receipt of benefit of any aid within the context of the controlled winding up procedure) and the avoidance of undue distortions of competition are amongst several considerations which are of vital importance.<sup>34</sup>

Liquidation Aid to Bradford and Bingley Plc

With the financial turmoil in September 2008 and its impact on the liquidity position of Bradford and Bingley, the UK authorities decided to pursue a wind-down procedure whereby the retail deposit book was to be sold while an orderly wind-down of the remainder of the business was to be undertaken for the purposes of maximising recoveries – as well as minimising the burden on taxpayers.<sup>35</sup>

A package of rescue measures which comprised of the following elements was accepted by the Commission :  $^{36}$

- a) the working capital facility;
- b) the guarantee arrangements to certain wholesale borrowings, derivative transactions and wholesale deposits existing as on 28 September 2008; and

Section 1 (6)

&lt;sup>33</sup> " For instance, where a member state undertakes to initiate liquidation of the financial institutions for which the guarantee needs to be activated. The assessment for such a scheme and of individual liquidation measures taken under such a scheme are to be applied along the same lines, mutates mutandis, as set out for guarantee schemes." See Section Five paragraph 43-44 of the Banking Communication.

 $<sup>^{34}</sup>$  Furthermore, i) "the liquidation phase should be limited to the period strictly necessary for orderly winding up; ii) The beneficiary financial institution should merely continue with ongoing activities and not pursue any new activities – as long as it continues to operate ; and iii) The banking licence should be withdrawn as quickly as possible." See ibid paragraphs 46 and 47.

c) the public support resulting from the Transfer Order containing two aid elements: firstly, an aid to B&B through the payment of £612 million for the sale of the transfer package, and secondly, an aid to the transferred economic entity, which corresponds to the ability for this entity to remain in the market.

An orderly winding down process, it was submitted, would not only "maximise the value of the remaining assets and minimize the amount of necessary state aid", but would also facilitate the repayment of the working capital facility as well as the statutory debt. Furthermore, the reasons for the choice of a controlled winding down process necessitated a consideration of the legislation in force when the decision to wind down Bradford and Bingley (now Rumpco) was taken and such reasons include:<sup>37</sup>

- An absence of a "strictly defined time-frame" for large and complex liquidations such as that of Bradford and Bingley (B & B).
- The fact that B & B would not have obtained the working capital facility which was required in order to pay Rumpco creditors had B & B chosen the route of uncontrolled insolvency. An uncontrolled insolvency procedure would also have resulted in liquidation shortfall with respect to debt owed to such creditors.
- A uncontrolled insolvency procedure would have endangered the prospects of the recovery of full value of statutory debt.
- Rumpco's uncontrolled insolvency would have undermined financial stability as well as market confidence.

G. PROVISION OF OTHER FORMS OF LIQUIDITY ASSISTANCE

According to section 6 of the Banking Communication<sup>38</sup> which deals with the provision of other forms of liquidity assistance, member states are permitted to implement "complementary forms of liquidity support – along with the provisions of public funds (which includes funds from the central bank)" in situations where "acute" liquidity problems are in need of redress. Furthermore, general measures which are implemented and are "open" to all market players on a comparable and equal basis (for example lending provided on an equal footing) and which do not constitute selective measures (which are in favour of individual banks), are often considered by the Commission as falling outside the boundaries of State rules and as such do not require notification to the Commission.<sup>39</sup>

&lt;sup>39</sup>, The Commission considers for instance that activities of central banks related to monetary policy, such as open market operations and standing facilities, are not caught by the State aid rules. Dedicated support to a specific financial institution may also be found not to constitute aid in specific circumstances. The Commission considers that the provision of central banks' funds to the financial institution in such a case may be found not to constitute aid when a number of conditions are met, such as:

— the facility is fully secured by collateral to which haircuts are applied, in function of its quality and market value,

- the central bank charges a penal interest rate to the beneficiary,

H. CONCLUSION

In response to the question on whether State aids should be provided to all classes of financial institutions permitted under the Banking Communication – particularly those institutions whose problems have been induced as a result of inefficiencies, poor asset liability management or risky strategies, the grant of State aid to such institutions could be justified on the basis that such financial institutions are considered to be of significance in terms of the systemic risks which could be triggered within the financial system where such institutions are allowed to fail. Furthermore, the Government should be prepared at any point in time, to nationalise such systemically relevant financial institutions.

Are Rescue Aids(as distinguished from other forms of State Aids) Justified Even Where the Possibility Exists that the Rescue Attempts Are Unlikely To Succeed?

After having evaluated both cases relating to Hypo Real Estate and Rumpco, it was illustrated that both, respectively, were eventually nationalised and wound up. Nationalisation serves as an indicator that a government recognises the systemic importance of such institutions. The reasons put forward by both authorities in justifying the systemic relevance of HRE and Bradford & Bingley (later known as Rumpco) include:

Consequences of Hypo Real Estate's Insolvency

Three consequences emanating in the event of HRE's insolvency, as identified are as follows:<sup>40</sup>

- Firstly, it would lead to very serious disturbances in the money markets in Germany and in the European Union.
- Secondly, there is a danger of serious distortions of payment transactions, for example in the case of transactions involving foreign exchange, securities or derivatives.
- Thirdly, it would damage the covered bond market, which plays an important role in refinancing the banks, particularly at this time of crisis. "<sup>41</sup>

In accordance with point 25 (b) of the Rescue and Restructuring Guidelines, the aims of the measures provided to Rumpco are as follows: <sup>42</sup>

&lt;sup>41</sup> "At around €900 billion, the German covered bond market is the second largest in the world. HRE represents around one fifth of this market. Covered bonds are a popular form of investment abroad, including in the USA, and confidence in them is high. Germany considers that the consequences of an uncontrolled collapse would be inestimable for the many creditors of HRE, with many banks being involved. Germany also states that pension schemes, professional associations, Bundesländer and municipalities had, in some cases, invested hundreds of millions in the Munich-based institute."ibid

&quot;The Commission did not consider it necessary to assess whether Article 87(3)(b) EC, which allows aid to remedy a serious disturbance in the economy of a Member State would apply at that stage in time - given that

- The prevention of serious social difficultie. Furthermore, such measures have no unduly adverse spill-over effects on other Member States.
- The protection of the jobs of some of the workers of B&B who in the case of an ordinary liquidation may have lost their jobs. The protection of depositors hence preventing a situation whereby the savings of UK citizens could be endangered.
- Maintaining confidence in the UK financial system this being considered to be the most important of all the aims.

As long as it has been established that the purpose of the State aid is directed at "remedying a serious disturbance in the economy of a Member State", pursuant to Article 87(3)(b) of the EC Treaty, considerations of other reasons put forward by state authorities for obtaining such state aids, as well as whether such reasons reflect the belief that these institutions can genuinely be rescued appear to be of less relevance.

Reasons should clearly reflect the desire to facilitate measures aimed at preventing further deterioration of the stability of the economy. With respect to the economy, the impact of the recent crisis on the choice of legislation has also been demonstrated. Whereas State aid to individual undertakings in difficulties is usually assessed under Article 87 (3)(c) of the EC Treaty and the Community Guidelines on State aid for rescuing and restructuring firms in difficulty, the systemic relevance of a financial institution and the impact of such an institution's failure on the economy, was reflected by the preference for Article 87(3)(b) EC Treaty and Article 107(3)(b) TFEU.<sup>43</sup> - which were available as legal bases for aid measures undertaken to address the systemic crisis.

Should Rescue Aids Still be Granted at a Point When Other Measures Such as Winding Down Measures and the Provision of Other Forms of Liquidity Assistance could be Introduced?

As mentioned previously, whether the reasons advanced by authorities for State aid application reflect the belief and possibility that these institutions can actually be rescued, appear to be of less relevance – as long as other stated criteria<sup>44</sup> have been established. Where an institution is of such systemic relevance as to merit government intervention, and consequently the grant of State aid, then such an institution should be provided with opportunities aimed at facilitating its rescue. Where and when it becomes certain and clear that such institutions can no longer be rescued or restructured successfully, then supplementary assistance in the form of controlled winding down measures and other forms of liquidity assistance could then be introduced.

Furthermore, speedy processes whereby such systemically relevant institutions are wound up – for instance, directly instigating uncontrolled winding up procedures without due consideration or recourse to rescue possibilities and/or controlled winding up procedures, would not only trigger an immediate loss of jobs, but also serious disturbances and repercussions which could further jeopardize the stability of the economy.

the Commission considers that the measure is compatible on the basis of Article 87(3)(c) EC." See ibid at paragraph 52

However, it has to be highlighted that once government intervention has taken place, State aid beneficiaries should not be encouraged to become too dependent on the Government but rather, should be stimulated to get back on their feet through "weaning" processes which would also reduce possibilities for distortions in competition.
